ANARCHISTS' ARK SAILS FOR RUSSIA

249 Radicals, Ordered Deported
By U. S., Leave Ellis Island.

archist Ark" when she sailed were noted plain and "fancy" reds, both rough-neck and parlor bolsheviks, communists, anarchists, and what-is-its. Most of them were charged with criminal anarchy. Others, to judge from their slavic utterances, apparently were charged with soda water.

Alexander Berkman, a leader of the anarchists in the United States, was defiant to the last.
"I'm coming back to America, and I'm going to get you," he hissed at Chief Special Agent William J. Flynn, of the Department of Justice, who was present with twenty of his operatives as the radicals marched aboard their boat in single file.
Emma Goldman, second in rank only to Berkman, and a life-long co-worker, was the first to go aboard at Ellis Island. She remained calm, but she had abandoned the complacent manner she had assumed early in the evening.

Girl's Voice Quivers.
Dora Lipkin, eighteen years old, who has been in the United States five years, looked back as she was about to step on the boat and called: "Goodbye, America," in a voice that had the faintest quiver.

Such was the inauguration of the trip of these radicals back to the country that they had held up as an example of enlightened government. It was a cold night, starry, and with just a little mist. A solemn secrecy hung over the whole affair, emphasized by the quiet, wailing dashes of red, green and yellow lights reflected on the water and the island, the millions of shining dots that marked New York city, hazy in the light fog.

Not far off the great light of Liberty, that had greeted these very persons when they came to America from their land of oppression, shone out to mock them on their voyage to their new ideal.
They did not know until after their supper of potato salad and cold sliced bologna sausage that they were to leave early this morning. The men were sent into the great waiting room on the second floor of one wing of the great immigration building on the island, while the women had rooms to themselves. The room is very plain and is furnished only with "city park" benches.

The radicals sat on these or on their baggage, some playing banjos, some guitars, while the others sang Russian songs. Alexander Berkman was allowed to go downstairs to tie up a large crate of oranges he had just received. Emma Goldman was in her room, supposedly sleeping.
There was a general show of good spirits about the place. Every one was comfortably dressed, those who had lacked clothes having been furnished by the United States with everything they needed in socks and caps to overcoats. There was no excitement. Most of them were young and few wore the distinguishing Bolshevik beards.

Berkman Wears Glasses.
Berkman wore his usual horn rimmed glasses and was dressed after the fashion of a Russian commissar, in a black shirt and khaki trousers that were tucked in knee high boots. He was easily recognized as the leader of the entire party, for when he came in the room where the rest were, they all stood up in honor. They had formed a soviet in the short time there and he was the grand com-

FORMER KAISER SEEKS TO FIX TIME OF TRIAL

Satisfied He Must Plead to Allies' Charges, Defense Is Being Prepared.

GENEVA, Dec. 21.—Former Kaiser Wilhelm has become reconciled to the fact that he must face trial by the allies.
He would like to choose the place where he will be tried, and would prefer to fix the date for his pleading, but has been assured his prosecutors will not permit him such privileges.

The former German Emperor, however, will have the best of legal talent to defend him when he stands before the bar of justice. He is absolutely certain in his own mind that his rights are fully conserved under international law and that no impartial jury will hold him culpable. With that conclusion, he has already been in touch with German lawyers and outlined at length the defense which he feels will set him right in the eyes of the world.
The crown prince that was views the outlook of the trial with no such optimistic eye. He is sullen and defiant, convinced that the hand of might and not justice dominates the allies' policy. He has asserted he will never appear even as a witness, and some construe these threats as evidence of suicidal intentions.

THE HAGUE, Dec. 18.—Long inclined to believe the allies would not make a serious demand for the extradition of former Emperor William, the Dutch government now expects such a demand will be made.
Holland will probably stick to her original position to refuse a demand for extradition of the former Emperor.

FIRST SHIP TO GERMANY.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The first ship to sail direct for Germany since the war, the Manchuria, of the American line, left here today. She carried 15,000 bags of mail, the largest shipment ever made from here on one ship, and had twenty-five passengers. She will dock at Hamburg, returning by way of Antwerp and Southampton.

RAW MILK AND CREAM

Boiled milk is much easier digested by babies than raw milk and also easier than pasteurized milk, and most of the digestive troubles of bottle-fed children are due to antiquated ideas regarding the alleged value of raw milk.

Milk labeled "pasteurized" may not be properly pasteurized. Washington has no laws requiring or controlling the pasteurization of its milk.

To protect children, invalids and those who are in a run-down condition against milk infections, raw milk and cream should be avoided.

Many outbreaks of typhoid, scarlet fever, diphtheria, septicaemia, throat, etc., have been caused by raw milk, even by the special or certified kind.

Properly pasteurized milk and cream, carefully cooled and bottled, is the only kind safe for older children should drink. If this cannot be obtained get good raw milk and scald it.

It has recently been established that Creamy Milk Powder, dissolved in boiled water, agrees with babies and causes them to thrive, when they cannot digest any other food.

The Health Officer of the District of Columbia will give you the sanitary rating of your local milk supply at any time you should apply for it.

CONGRESS QUILTS WORK FOR CHRISTMAS SEASON

Both Branches Adjourn to Be With Home Folks Until January 5.

Congress adjourned last night for a holiday recess of two weeks. It will return to duty January 5 prepared, its leaders said, to undertake any legislative task with vigor.

The House will begin work on the annual appropriation bills immediately after the recess. These total more than four billion dollars, and must be materially reduced, leaders of the Republican majority in House and Senate declare. The task of passing the fourteen appropriation measures will occupy the House well into the first month of the new year.

The Senate will return to resume efforts to reach a compromise on the peace treaty. It will take up water power legislation early in the new year and following that, it is expected, bills to regulate the packing of the world.

In both houses an early start is hoped for on legislation reorganizing the army on a peace basis. The House Military Committee has completed its bill, and the Senate Military Committee will spend the recess perfecting a reorganization measure.

The Senate Commerce Committee will begin hearings January 5 preliminary to framing a permanent policy for the American merchant marine. Conferees on the House and Senate railway bill will work through the holiday recess.
